FIFTY YEARS AGO

"Mr. R. L. Shuford was on the program (at the Farmer's Convention in Raleigh). We heard several farmers say they were coming to see how Mr. Shuford makes butter and to see his cows. He is making Catawba famous for his fine cows and good butter. The girls at the Normal College want his butter and must have it, even if it costs more money than other butter . . ."

The News and Observer: Two bills . . . have been introduced (in the Legislature) to establish a Normal and Industrial school each of North Carolina and a Normal and Industrial school each of Raleigh . . ."

Editorial excerpts about these bills. "About every two years the question of establishing an Eastern State Normal College bobs up. It seems to us that it would be just as wise to establish an Eastern Normal College with Carolina to establish an Eastern State Normal College for women. No man has been silly enough to propose an Eastern University of North Carolina up to the present writing. The young women of North Carolina should have dollar for dollar spent for them at the State Normal College at Greensboro, that is to say, the State gives one dollar to the University at Chapel Hill it ought to give a like amount to the young woman's college, at Greensboro."

"The greatest speech ever delivered in Marshallville was that of Dr. Charles McIver at the closing exercises of Marshallville Academy last spring. He was there to listen to it with indifference, as in the case of all commencements, but those who followed him closely through his discourse were deeply impressed as they had never been before. It is easy for a politician to draw beautiful pictures of the ideal, of the higher duties of life . . . on this occasion the audience listened to a man who had practised what he preached, to a man who had sacrificed his personal interest for the benefit of humanity . . ."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Dateline: Greensboro . . . January 8: North Carolina College for Women today bowed to the demands of the modern girl when authorities announced that students of the institution would be allowed to smoke in their dormitory rooms during the remainder of the 1931-32 term. In announcing the decision to the students, Dr. Julius L. Foust, president, said that the regulation prompted him to conclude that the禁令 would be strictly enforced. He also said that the college authorities only were recognizing conditions already existing.

Some time ago a petition signed by many of the students requesting the smoking privilege was presented to the president and the board consisting of the trustees of the college last Saturday. At that time, Dr. Foust was given authority to make such changes in student regulations as he deemed necessary. The young women will be allowed to smoke at no places other than their own dormitory rooms. No visiting among rooms or the number of smokers will be allowed, nor will any girl be allowed to smoke if her roommate objects. The president of the college must be informed of her wishes by each girl desiring to smoke and a record will be kept, if deemed necessary, the parents of the young woman in question will be consulted.

Dateline: Raleigh . . . January 14: North Carolina has gone on a "cash basis," to meet its financial crisis. Governor Gardner today outlined plans to spend no more than the state's revenues. All operations not absolutely essential to the welfare of the state will be discontinued. No more money will be borrowed.

Two new courses will find their places in the catalogue for the coming scholastic year. Both courses approved by the state council lead to the degree of bachelor of science in commerce. One is specifically named a program of study for training teachers of commercial studies in high schools. The other is a secretarial course. Each course is designed to cover a period of four years and to carry collegiate credit of approximately 120 hours.

FORWORD

A part of this issue of THE ALUMNAE NEWS is being used to let alumnae and friends of the Woman's College know of its state appropriation needs for the 1957-59 biennium and to show why its requests are reasonable and necessary.

On another page is a tabulation of the College's financial requests as recommended by the State Board of Higher Education.

These figures, however, will not have full significance until they are translated into terms of service rendered, work undertaken, and needs that must be met.

Woman's College has served thousands of young women during the past sixty-five years. These women have extended the college's influence to millions of others.

Looking ahead, even greater work faces the College. Alumnae and all North Carolinians at this time should take a fresh look at the way Woman's College goes about doing the job at hand and know what minimum needs it must have to face the future.

As the only state-supported liberal arts college exclusively for women, the scope of its total program is not duplicated anywhere else in the state.

In planning for the future, Woman's College is aware that limitations placed on its program is to a like degree placing limitations on the opportunities of many of the state's future young women for adequate vocational preparation, on their achieving the fullest degree of community usefulness, and attaining on the highest personal development for themselves and for their families.

These limitations inevitably would be reflected in scores of areas of the state's life where there is mounting need for many kinds of teachers, social case workers, nurses, dietitians, home demonstration agents, recreation directors, secretaries, laboratory technicians, and skilled young women in scores of other fields.

In this issue will be found a map of North Carolina showing a county by county 1956-57 tally of Woman's College alumnae and of currently enrolled students.

The map strikingly reveals the state-wide character of Woman's College's influence and service. It indicates that there is hardly a city precinct or rural community in all of North Carolina that has not sent students to the College and in turn received them back trained to teach, to serve, and to lead.

The figures in the Woman's College budget requests represent future service to hundreds of thousands of school children who must have good teachers, thousands of farm communities that will be served by home demonstration agents, not-yet-designed laboratories that will get their technicians, future businesses that will have continuing supply of trained secretaries and personnel directors, hospitals that will have a constant supply of dietitians and nurses, and government agencies and private industries that will have available when needed specialists of many skills.

The vocations for which college women are trained are usually those that involve direct service to or care of people. Woman's College is one of those educational agencies that offers to the state the shortest time lag between appropriated dollars and missions undertaken in behalf of many citizens.

Woman's College is confident that it will have the continued generous support of the state. It is depending upon its alumnae and friends, however, to extend a fuller knowledge and appreciation of the College wherever they can and to win for it new friends and supporters.

Board Approves

The plan to establish an experimental nursing school at Woman's College in cooperation with the Cone Memorial Hospital has been approved unanimously by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina. Hospital trustees will underwrite expenses up to $100,000 for the operation of the program which will provide a two-year college course in nursing education at the College, to be followed by a one-year internship in the hospital. The first class in the program is scheduled to be enrolled for the 1957-58 College session.

This issue of THE ALUMNAE NEWS has been published through the combined efforts of the Alumnae Office and the College News Bureau, of which Mr. A. A. Wilkinson is director.

Commended

The University of North Carolina's television station, WUNC-TV, was commended in a resolution adopted by the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters at their convention in November. The station, which has studios at Woman's College, State College, and Carolina, was cited for the work which has been done in the educational field and in the supplying of programs to commercial stations.

SAGGING CEILING

McIver Building . . . the Inside Story

The replacement of McIver Memorial Building is so urgent that it is the first and foremost requirement in the college's listing of permanent improvements requests for the 1957-59 biennium.

For nearly fifty years McIver has been the hub of the college's classroom activity. A daily classroom attendance of some 5,000 students and the passage of time have combined to reduce the old building to virtual uselessness and an actual hazard to life and limb.

Its sturdy appearing exterior belies "the inside story." Actually, McIver was first built in an emergency. After Old Brick Building was destroyed by fire in 1904, the cornerstone of McIver was laid in 1906 following the death of Dr. Charles Duncan McIver.

Its construction was begun "on $18,000 cash in hand and faith that the other $42,000 would be forthcoming."

In the interest of economy and speed, the building had wood joists and non-fireproof interior wood work. Likewise, the heating, plumbing, and electrical systems have been obsolete for many years. Patching has been laid upon earlier patchings to accentuate its deteriorated condition.

Architectural authorities agree that renovation of McIver, however strong it is in the affections of thousands of students, would be uneconomical and impractical as it would be to attempt to convert a Stanley Steamer into the equal of a 1957 Buick.

Since last Fall McIver has been closed to classroom use. In the previous Spring heavy slabs of ceiling plaster fell and were shattered on classroom desks, fortunately at a time when students were not present.

FALLING PLASTER

ent. An investigation revealed many dangerous weaknesses. Since McIver carried the campus' heaviest class load, student traffic in hallways produced threatening vibrations to the wooden interior.

Sequel to the necessary closing of McIver has been an unprecedented scattering of classes this year and serious disruption to the work of twelve departments: Art, Classical Civilization, English, Geography, German, Health, History and Political Science, Mathematics, Philosophy, Psychology, and Sociology.

Chancellor Pierson has paid tribute to the "fine spirit of cooperation" shown by "displaced" members of the faculty and administration, as well as of students, in meeting this emergency. For many of them it means sprinting between extreme sides of the campuses to meet consecutive classes, some of which are in basements and other areas sadly lacking in classroom qualifications.

Thus, venerable McIver Building, built "on a shoestring" but destined to play a large part in the growth of the college, has come to the end of its usefulness.

Chancellor Pierson has let it be known that a new building, erected on the same spot, would bear the name of McIver Memorial Building. It would certainly have a vital part in the continued development of Woman's College.

Our hearts were young situation is a bit different. Since the students returned from the holidays, only four have been in bed with the influenza, and not one of them had taken the vaccine shot when it was offered.

Nineteen North Carolina counties, 25 other states, District of Columbia, Alaska, and three foreign countries are represented in the student body this year. . . . Within the state, Guilford County tops enrollment with 301 students, while Forsyth and Mecklenburg counties tie for second place with 98 each. Third place goes to Wake County, with 69, followed closely by Buncombe, with 68, and New Hanover, with 42, in fourth and fifth places.

Pierce C. Rucker, Greensboro businessman and chairman of the Guilford County Democratic Executive Committee, said that he considered the proposed appropriation for Woman's College "a disgrace to the State of North Carolina." The General Assembly, Rucker said, should provide the College with a substantial building program, along with what has been done for the State College and Chapel Hill branches of the Greater University in the past years. "In the past 17 years Woman's College has received only $300,000—and that from the PWA—while the other units have been forging ahead with big expansions," he declared, as he urged that alumni of the university who are members of the General Assembly come "to the defense" of the Woman's College.

These . . . Woman's College must have

MAJOR INCREASES

Apart from the college's request for four items of permanent improvements, it will ask the forthcoming General Assembly for appropriations in four operational areas, each requiring increases during 1957-59 over the currently ending biennium.

For 1957-58 the appropriation requested is $2,007,014. The college's own income during that period is estimated at $1,603,063, which added to the requested appropriation totals $3,610,077 that will be required for the year's operations.

For 1958-59 the college is requesting an appropriation of $1,981,853, which is $1,603,063 less than total operations costs. College income will provide the difference.

The appropriation increases for the two biennium years are $459,931 and $470,700 respectively.

The increases are based on anticipated rising costs and certain minimum essential needs that must be met. Explanation of these major increases has been set forth as follows:

(1) Salaries and Wages

An increase in the appropriation for salaries and wages is recommended for the following general reasons:

- (a) To retain the faculty and staff presently employed (to meet heavy competition from other institutions, industry, etc.)
- (b) To employ additional faculty and staff to meet instructional and operational needs.
- (c) To give support to organized research, especially projects related to professional services to the College and the State.

(2) Supplies and Materials

An increase in the appropriation for supplies and materials is requested because of the advance in the cost of coal, instructional sup-

PERMANENT IMPROVEMENTS

There are four citations in Woman's College's request for permanent improvements for the next biennium. Two are of replacement of facilities, of the historic but crumbling McIver Building and the precarious 33-year-old steam tunnel extending from the steam station to Forney Building.

The third citation is the need for renovation of the air change systems in the Library and Home Economics Building. Fourth is the construction of a needed direct entrance and approach to the center of the campus through Peabody Park to West Market Street on U. S. highways No. 29 and No. 70.

These projects line up as follows:

- 1) A new McIver Building, including equipment, $1,300,000.
- 2) Steam tunnel and pipe, $143,000.
- 3) Air change systems, $52,000.
- 4) New entrance, street, and lighting, $60,000.

The need for a new McIver Building is well known and is outlined in another article. It is a prime must.

To speak of steam tunnel construction perhaps touches upon a prosaic side of college life, but this winter the campus has been living precariously where assurance of comfort is concerned. More than a quarter of a century of campus construction has vastly increased the load on the old steam line. Sometimes it is submerged in water. Even a boost of pressure from 120 to 130 pounds has failed to produce satisfactory distribution through the overworked system.

It will require a concrete tunnel with no less than a 200-pound main pipes extending from the steam plant to Forney Building, a distance of 1,277 feet, to give the campus satisfactory heating.

The college library and the Home Economics Buildings comprise the west and east boundaries of the newest campus central court. In most respects they are beautiful, modern, and efficient but original errors in planning and design have made their basic air circulation and heat reduction systems entirely inadequate. And the two buildings are constructed so that efficient systems are necessary. This situation is particularly distressing in summer when essential areas in heavy demand for the teacher training program are rendered partially unusable. This renovation project would greatly improve the summer instructional program and enable Woman's College to make fuller summer use of its facilities.

plies and materials for the library and for classroom and laboratory use, office supplies, and medical supplies for use in the Infirmary.

Additional funds are needed for supplies and materials for buildings, grounds, and physical maintenance.

COLLEGE ENTRANCE TO HIGHWAY 29-70

We were taught and trained. . .

Now we work and serve

A survey made several years ago produced the startling fact that Woman's College alumnae were active in 67 different vocations and professions.

This has been an amazing development since the days of the college's founding when the list virtually ended with teaching, nursing, and office work.

Today Woman's College is sending its young women into nearly every area of the world's activity. Never before has college training meant more not only to the women themselves but to every enterprise calling for talent, skill, and intelligence.

Here is a glance at some of the various areas of work and living where WC graduates are now making their influence felt.

SCHOOLS: teachers: classroom—elementary and high school, administrators, principals, supervisors, recreation and health directors, academic counseling, art, music teachers, camp counselors, cafeteria managers, librarians, and vocational instructors.

SCIENCE: teachers, laboratory technicians, chemists, nurses, dietitians, physicians, engineering work, photographers and pharmacy.

INDUSTRY: designers and artists, draftsmen, chemists and mathematicians, secretaries and executives, public relations, personnel directors, computers and analysts and laboratory research.

GOVERNMENT: translators, secretaries, administrators, technicians, departmental specialists, and information services.

BUSINESS: secretaries, auditors, bookkeepers, clerks, office managers, advertising and promotion, salesmanship, distribution, buyers, owners and operators and institution management.

AGRICULTURE: home demonstration agents, dairy specialists, farm operators, rural community and school activities, 4-H leadership and conservationists.

PROFESSIONS: Law, medicine, college teaching, librarians, authors, artists, musicians, architects and drama.

SOCIAL WORK: social case workers, YWCA work, Red Cross workers, church workers and executives, missionaries, recreation directors, camp directors, scout and youth leaders.

HOMES: clothing, care selection of foods, home management and family life, furnishings, decorations, child care and training, and economic planning.

HEALTH: nutrition, physical education, recreation, nursing, supervision, research, physiotherapists, and x-ray technicians.

COMMUNICATIONS: radio, TV, journalism and publications, advertising, photography, writers, editors, and public relations.

COMMUNITY LEADERSHIP: clubs, civic organizations, schools, PTA, welfare, church, commissions and boards, political and public affairs.

UP and DOWN College Avenue

The Woman's College Legislature has approved resolutions creating two new committees: an Executive Cabinet and a Publications Board. The Cabinet is composed of the heads of all major campus organizations and will act as a channel through which discussions and action will be taken on any situation arising in any phase of campus life. The Publications Board will approve candidates for the editorships of Pine Needles, Coraddi, and Carolinian.

Lynette Downing of Fayetteville has been elected president of the Commercial Class, and working with her will be Ruth Matthews, Greensboro, vice-president; Anne Alexander, Charlotte, secretary; Bessie Dimos, Charlotte, treasurer; and Thorne Hartle, Winston-Salem, cheerleader.

Three Woman's College students were awarded $300 scholarships (national awards) at the National 4-H Club Congress. Faye Canada and Ruth Temple were winners on Clothing Achievement, and Vivian Tucker's award came in Food Preparation.

Sue Sigmon, a junior from Charlotte, was the recipient of the 1956 Junior Phi Beta Kappa award for the highest scholastic average in her class during the first two years of college work. Sue is this year's holder of the Mecklenburg County Alumnae Chapter scholarship.

The Freshmen (Class of 1960) have elected their "first" officers: president, Carol Carson of Goldsboro; Mary Christian Bridgers of Wilson, vice-president; Beeky Shuping of Salisbury, secretary; Diana Harmon of Greensboro, treasurer; and Margaret and Barbara Hawley of Durham, cheerleaders.

The student body in mass meeting in December went on record "as unequivocally urging that the legislature of the State of North Carolina allocate funds for the construction of a new McIver Memorial Building in the near future." The same resolution had previously been passed unanimously in the College student legislature and at the State Student Legislature in Raleigh. The resolution was sponsored by Golden Chain, campus honorary leadership society.

Firemen . . . Firemen . . .

Fire that apparently originated in a wastebasket did damage estimated at $650 to room 216 in Mary Foust Hall shortly before 9:00 one morning in December. The blaze was quickly extinguished, but a dresser, other furnishings, and some clothing and personal belongings of the student occupants were lost. Six fire trucks responded to the alarm, and police accompanied the firemen to take care of campus traffic.

Fortunately . . . or unfortunately, the momentary excitement occurred about the time that classes were changing . . . there was no interruption of the class schedule.

The graduate and certification credit course currently being offered by Woman's College on WUNC-TV: Channel 4 is Education 500: Home and School Sanitation. Dr. Alice Schriver of the College Health Department is teaching the course which is telecast from 8:00 to 8:45 on Tuesdays and Thursdays through April 11. The course will be divided into three parts: finding out what a community has in the way of sanitation, what it ought to have, and how to go about getting the improvements. Dr. Schriver hopes that the course will bring about an awareness of sanitation facilities in towns and cities throughout the State.

Dr. Richard Bardolph is one of five North Carolinians appointed to canvass the State's college campuses to recruit young men and women for college and university teaching. The program, nationwide in scope, is to seek out the most promising college graduates every year and offer them a year of graduate training in any of the humanities and social sciences. This undertaking is being financially underwritten by members of the Association of Graduate Schools and by grants from the Carnegie Corporation of New York and the General Education Board.

"New Look" in Vacation Dismissal

Classes before Christmas Holidays ended at 1:00 p.m., instead of 5:00 p.m. as had been published in the catalog. Classes which had been scheduled to meet from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. on the afternoon the holidays began were "made up" on Friday night (after the holidays) from 7:00 to 10:00. These changes were arrived at in joint consultation of the Faculty-Student Reviewing Committee and the College Calendar Committee, after many requests for change had been voiced by the students.

The eight outstanding members of the Class of 1957 have been elected by their classmates: Eleanor Butler, Morganton, vice-president of Student Government; Ann C. Crawford, Marysville, Washington, president of the Senior Class; Sadie Dunn, Bladenboro, president of Student Government; Elizabeth Martin, Charlotte, Honor Board chairman; Pat McCauley, Bluefield, West Virginia, Judicial Board chairman; Mary Nell Meroney, Winston-Salem, chairman of the Consolidated University Student Council; Lu Stephenson, Saluda, student chairman of the Social Science Forum; and Chris Velonis, Greensboro, Town Students' legislative representative.

The residents of North Spencer Hall have new furniture . . . and one of the best features remains hidden most of the time: full length storage drawers under each bed.

On the very day that his coming was announced, about 1200 Woman's College students, faculty members, and others poured into the Elliott Hall Ballroom to hear a Hungarian student leader in the Hungarian revolution plead his case and call for support of the cause he was representing. Using the alias of Istvan Laszlo, this student came to the campus on November 28 as a part of a current National Student Association tour of 100 colleges and universities.

The theme of the young speaker's words as related to his audience through an interpreter centered around a desire for those listening to him to express their opinion to the United States government and U. S. delegates to the United Nations to take a more definite stand on the Hungarian question.

In response to this plea, the Woman's College students in a representative body sent a letter to the President of the United States approving "the constructive peaceful measures that the U. S. government has taken thus far in supporting the Hungarian cause" . . . and affirming that their sympathy "lies with the Hungarian people" and advocating "that our government take as firm a stand on this issue as is expedient."

In its fall initiation Golden Chain inducted six new members: four seniors, Barbara Davis of Charlotte, Sharon Lupton of Edenton, Neill McLeod of Raleigh, and Martie Yow of Greensboro; and two juniors, Valerie Honsinger of Washington, D. C. and Sue Sigmon of Charlotte.

The Greensboro Daily News' sports writer Irwin Smallwood reports on the Woman's College Golf Course: "You may by chance have noticed, while driving down South Aycocock street by Woman's College, that scattered here and there are fairly large patches of bright green turf, strangely resembling greens on a golf course. It figures. They are greens, sure signs of the fast-developing new golf course for WC."

"Started just about a year ago, the area is now beginning to take definite shape of the nine-hole course it is intended to be. Ellen Griffin, who annually instructs the some 400 girls who take golf at the College, reports that two of the holes are already in use for instructional purposes.

"We will officially open the course next spring," she reported the other day, adding: "We are very pleased with the way it is shaping up, especially the greens. We are using the first and ninth now for the class of 200 I am presently teaching."

"The course, when opened in the spring, will carry a nine-hole par of 31. There are five par threes, four par fours. The longest hole will be about just under 300 yards, the shortest approximately 50 yards to an island green which is very well trapped. Playing time for nine holes, at least for the better golfers, will be right at an hour.

"When the course matures, plans are to install additional tees whereby some of the shorter holes may be bypassed to present sterner tests via distance."

SPECIFICALLY . . . THE CLASS OF '56

The Woman's College Placement Office has released figures relating to its role in placing the 1956 seniors in jobs.

No other document could hardly sum up so effectively the vocational preparation of 362 young women. Every one of the 357 who registered for positions were placed! Five did not register with the office, making their own plans.

This achievement is not surprising in view of the fact that 1,690 vacancies were available. It is significant that the placement office had 1,690 teaching positions offered while only 170 senior education majors were available for those jobs.

Of the students who went into teaching 93 chose primary and elementary teaching, 68 became high school teachers, one is now a kindergarten teacher, and eight received college or junior college positions.

The versatility of Woman's College training is shown by the diversification of the positions the 1956 seniors were given. These young graduates are now laboratory technicians, home economists, dietitians, mathematicians, state extension service workers, chemists, welfare workers, librarians, and newspaper and magazine writers. Other areas of work include organist-choir direction, television, Red Cross, clothing and textile research, layout art, Y.W.C.A., public relations, religious education direction, bank telling, secretarial and clerical, and government work.

The Woman's College placement office received personal visits from 157 recruiters from business, industry and educational institutions, and government agencies in search of young women for available jobs.

With the exception of those who entered graduate schools or became housewives, all members of the class of 1956 are now at work. They have scattered to nearly every section of the state and are well started on their way to becoming productive citizens, undertaking the ever greater obligations and broader opportunities for service that await educated women today.

These . . . Woman's College must have

In a very real sense the college campus has its back turned to its most desirable contiguous neighborhood and has been kept almost inaccessible from two of the state's most travelled highways, No. 70 and No. 29 on West Market Street.

To correct this, the college is requesting a West Market Street main entrance, in keeping with the beauty and needs of the campus, and a lighted and paved drive through Peabody Park to the residential section of the campus. Countless traffic snarls, confusion of visitors, and circuitous driving to some parts of the campus would be remedied. Also, the new lighted drive would be an asset to the policing of the campus.

There are no luxuries and frills among the permanent improvements requests the college is making. It is asking only for those things that are judged essential for the minimum efficiency, safety, and well being of those who live and work on the campus.

We note with pride that . . .

Emily (Harris) Preyer '36 was selected by the members of Golden Chain, the College honorary leadership society, in their fall election as an honorary member . . . the eighth so designated since the beginning of the organization.

Ellen Griffin '40, associate professor of physical education, was named president-elect of the North Carolina Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation at its annual meeting at Appalachian State Teachers College in Boone in November.

Julia (Montgomery) Street '23 received the year's American Association of University Women's award for juvenile literature for her book, "Fiddler's Fancy". The presentation was made at the annual meeting of the Literary and Historical Association in Raleigh in December.

Eleanor Southerland '42 will spend the next two years in Colombia, South America, as a home agent with the International Cooperative Administration, an independent federal agency that sends technical assistants all over the world. Eleanor had done home demonstration work in Cumberland, Sampson, and Rowan counties since she was graduated.

Joan Roberts '52 is serving as Coordinator of Religious Activities at Woman's College. Joan, who is also counselor in Coit Hall, was appointed to fill a vacancy left by Ruth (Abbott) Clarke '31, who is spending the winter in Woodstock, New York, "just painting."

Elaine Hill '55 and Mary Louise Sizer '53 received their commissions as ensigns in the United States Navy on December 13 at the Naval Schools Command in Newport, Rhode Island. They had completed an eight weeks Officer Candidate training program for women, and now will complete an additional eight weeks of officer training prior to being assigned to their first duty station within the Naval Shore Establishment.

Lettie (Hamlett) Rogers '40 will have her fourth novel, "Birthright", published by Simon and Schuster in March. And the book has been selected by the Literary Guild as its April selection.

Edythe Latham's ('36) novel, "The Sounding Brass", is to become a play, according to the New York Times.

Ronie Sheffield '29 has been appointed director of the Young Women's Christian Association in Richmond, Virginia. Prior to this appointment, she served for two years as associate director of programs for the American Friends Service Committee in Germany.

Jane (Linville) Joyner '46 was cited in a feature article in the Chapel Hill Weekly for her contribution to her church. Not only is she the church organist, she owns the organ . . . an antique pump instrument which is being used while the services of the newly organized church are being held in a school building.

Mary (Berry) Barnes '48 had a one-woman show of her paintings in the Peruvian-North American Cultural Institute in Lima, Peru. The thirty-two paintings and pen-and-ink sketches have been done while she has been in Lima with her husband, who is an oil company representative. Of her work one critic noted: "The oil paintings and drawings of Mary Barnes are a welcome relief to those who, like the artist, believe that a painting should not completely lack communication between the artist and public. . . . One has the feeling that the artist paints with purpose and determination, that the purpose is not merely to show something 'sensationally' different but rather to give new life to some of the old values."

PAT MARKAS says . . .

"Scouting calls on every talent you possess"

BY MARY HOWARD ELLISON

"I felt just like a Brownie who had accidentally flown up into a Senior troop," says Pat Markas, who started work in Kannapolis, North Carolina, last fall as acting executive director of the Rowan-Cabarrus Girl Scout Council. "It seemed to me that every problem I encountered was new and unique. I was a little ashamed of myself at my Initial Training Course when I discovered most of the others were in the same boat—there are no unique problems in Scouting."

Patricia Anne Markas came to the Girl Scouts from a rather unusual field—psychology. A native of Morganton, North Carolina, she took her A.B. in psychology at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, in 1953. She immediately got a job at the State Mental Hospital at Butner, North Carolina, as a psychologist assigned to testing and therapy.

Institutional life at Butner proved rather confining, Pat discovered. She did the same things over and over, met the same people, dealt with recurring problems. "I finally realized that my work was cutting me off from most of what I consider community life," she explains. "I like working with different kinds of people. I craved a greater variety in my day-to-day activities, so I started looking for another job."

Her interest aroused by an article on Girl Scout careers in the American Psychological Employment Bulletin, she wrote to national headquarters and was interviewed. Mrs. Paul Maulden (Julia Watson '33) of Kannapolis, a member of the National Board of Directors, actually "sold" her on a Girl Scout job.

"Mrs. Maulden herself is such a wonderful person that I knew I'd like to work for an organization that can attract volunteers of her caliber," Pat explains. "She convinced me not only of the social value of Scouting, but of its advantages as a vocation—offering opportunities for

Cumberland County

Kathleen P. Hawkins, Student Aid Officer at the College, and Barbara Parrish, Alumnae Secretary, talked informally about "Woman's College Today" at the fall meeting of the Cumberland County Alumnae Chapter on October 28. The dinner meeting was held in Fayetteville at the Highland Country Club.

Reports were made about the awarding of the Mary Fields Jones Scholarship for the 1956-57 College session and the recipient; the flower bulb sale; and "ways and means" for the current year's scholarship fund project.

Durham County

New officers were elected at the fall meeting of the Durham County Alumnae Chapter held at Harvey's Cafeteria in Durham on November 20; chairman, Barbara Carden '53; vice-chairman, Augusta (Reece) Hockaday '45; secretary, Helen (Haynes) Strader '55; and treasurer, Jean (Proffitt) Weynard '49.

Using an out-of-date map of the Woman's College campus as a guide, Barbara Parrish, Alumnae Secretary, conducted an up-to-date "tour", noting the additions and changes in the physical lay-out of the campus and their effect on today's program. Betsy Umstead '49, a member of the College Physical Education staff and Counselor in Winfield Hall, made additional comments.

Plans for a Benefit Bridge to be given in the spring were presented and discussed. Proceeds from this project will re-establish the Durham County Scholarship Fund.

Forsyth County

The members of the Forsyth County Alumnae Chapter entertained themselves at a Woman's College Birthday Party on October 29 at the home of Mrs. Odell Mathews.

Harnett County

Harnett County alumnae, present students at the College, and prospective students were invited to a

Renew Acquaintance Party at the Home Economics Cottage at Campbell College in Buies Creek on Friday, December 28.

Mecklenburg County

Dean of Students Katherine Taylor spoke to the members of the Mecklenburg County Alumnae Chapter about "Ladies of the French Salon" at the group's fall meeting at Kuester's Restaurant in Charlotte on October 25. Miss Taylor was "poetically" introduced by Vice-chairman Jeane (Kceter) Benton '44.

An announcement was made that a White Elephant Auction Sale would be held in January among the members to benefit the Scholarship Fund. Sue Sigmon, a junior at the College, is the recipient of this year's scholarship, and according to Dean Taylor, she is making an outstanding record . . . one of which the Chapter should be very proud.

Ann (Holmes) Jones '44, outgoing chairman of the Chapter, introduced the new officers for 1956-57: Eleanor (Kerchner) Campbell '39, chairman; and Eleanor (Strong) Barkley '46, secretary. Vice-chairman Jeane Benton and Treasurer Frances (Whalin) Dulin '42 will continue in office for another year.

County Alumnae Chapter were hostesses to the alumni of State and Carolina at a banquet in the Cape Fear Hotel ballroom in Wilmington on November 15. Mr. William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina, was the speaker for the occasion. Before his speech, which dealt with the needs of the University, the group sang the songs of the three colleges of the University.

A "meet the president" open house was held at the hotel for an hour before the dinner.

Emily (Chappell) Smith '47, chairman of the Woman's College Alumnae Chapter, presided.

Randolph County

Randolph County alumnae celebrated the College's 64th birthday with a birthday party on October 23 in the Student Activities Room of the Asheboro High School. The twenty-three alumnae who attended listened first to a UNC Communications Center recording about Dr. McIver's work in founding the College, after which they worked to solve the Founder's Day Double-Crostic Puzzle. Rose (Fincher) Patterson was declared winner of the contest.

In the business session Claudine (Cox) Bunch '49 was elected to serve as chairman of the Chapter, succeeding Sara Helen Covington '34C; Dorothy (Sahr) Walker '51 as vice-chairman; and Ernestine (Bunting) Presnell '45 as secretary-treasurer. The group paid tribute to Faye (Caveness) Albright '28, who was serving as vice-chairman at the time of her death in January.

Contributions amounting to $9.05 were dropped into a cardboard birthday cake for the Chapter's Scholarship Fund.

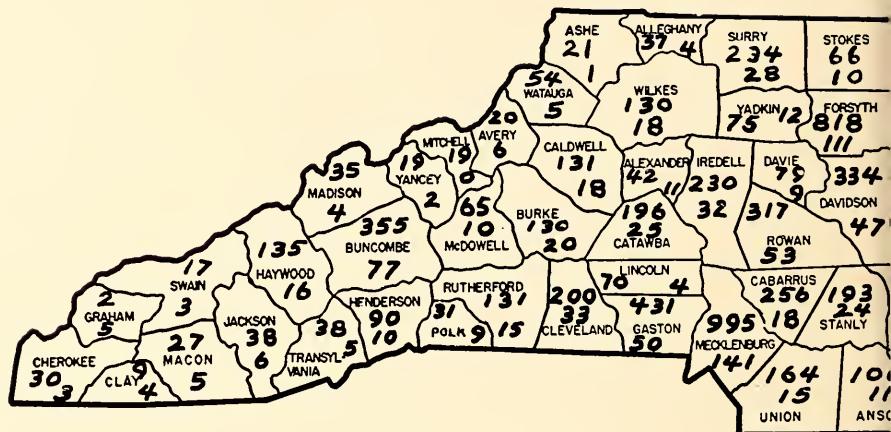

Individual cakes iced in white with tiny yellow candles in each, punch, and nuts were served from a table centered with yellow and talisman roses, flanked by yellow tapers . . . truly a Woman's College birthday party setting!

Dateline: Hertford Herald . . . February 1907

In the official report of the Board of Directors of the State Normal and Industrial College to the General Assembly, we note that every county in the State has patronized this Institution. Divided by sections, we note that the 33 Eastern counties have been represented in this school by 931 students, the 33 Central counties by 1715, and the 31 Western counties by 552, a total of 3,198 up to June 1st, 1906. It will be seen by this statement that the State Normal and Industrial College at Greensboro is truly a State Institution both in spirit and in letter.

Look at this map of North Carolina showing its cluster of 100 counties, each properly labeled and accompanied by two figures. The larger (or top) figure in each indicates the number of alumnae now living in that county; the smaller (or lower) figure represents the number of students now enrolled at Woman's College.

More than half of the counties have 100 or more daughters of Woman's College living in them... wives, mothers, teachers, business women, home demonstration agents, choir directors, nurses, and busy women in many other areas of community and civic life.

Some of the counties are the home of many hundreds of Woman's College alumnae who in each community constitute a valuable segment of its home-church-civic leadership. No county is without Woman's College alumnae.

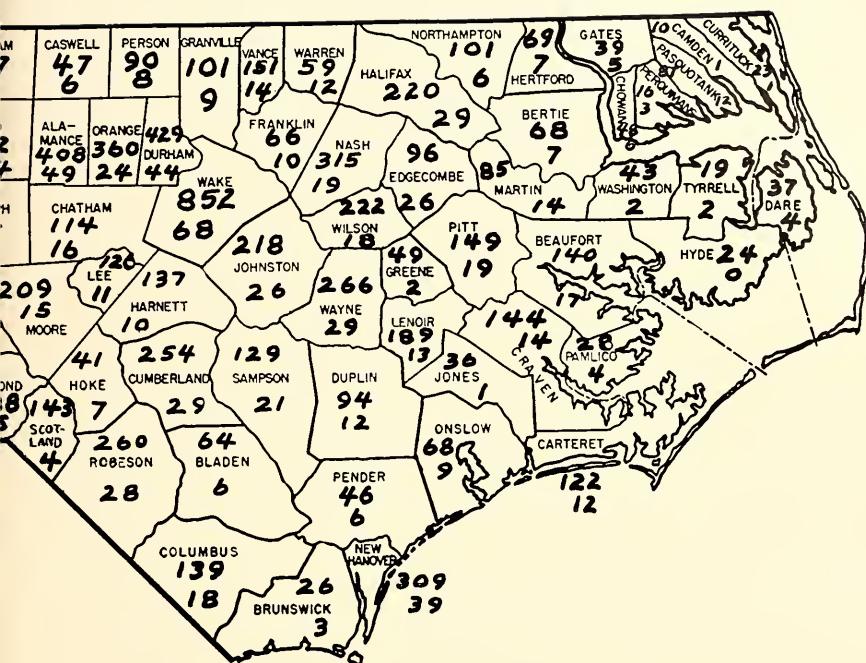

Here is significant proof that Woman's College has achieved its Charter-commitment "to render educational service to each county in the State." Today there are 17,578 alumnae living in the state.

Unique in North Carolina as the state's only public supported liberal arts college for women, the College for sixty-five years has drawn its students from every city, hamlet, and community in the state and as alumnae they are as widely distributed.

Year after year this broad and intimate contact with all parts of the state has continued. Rarely are more than three or four counties unrepresented in each student body. This year there are on the campus students from 98 counties. 217 are the daughters and granddaughters of alumnae.

In terms of women's influence widely dispersed throughout the state, Woman's College is an unmatched source of strength and power for homes, schools, churches, and communities.

The State's Need . . .

The State of North Carolina puts few needs above that of more teachers, superiorly trained teachers who by aptitude and ability are capable of developing the resources of intellect and character that the State has in its children.

The good teacher has been a special product of Woman's College since its founding. The College consistently has been the State's largest producer of teachers. No monetary value could possibly be estimated to represent the work of the more than 8,000 teachers who have gone out from Woman's College to touch and enrich the lives of hundreds of thousands of school children.

Each year, according to state education leaders, North Carolina requires 3,200 new teachers to match the needs of growing population and teachers who retire or for various reasons drop out of the profession.

Each year, it is estimated, 2,000 young women (and some men) are trained to teach. However, only 1,000 of those trained actually find teaching attractive and rewarding enough to enter the teaching field.

This means that the state finds itself short each year of 2,000 needed teachers, or one-third the number it actually needs. The result is crowded classrooms, recruitment of temporary teachers of limited qualifications, and a disrupting turn-over of personnel that can only mean an adverse effect on the educational program.

It is useless to regret that Woman's College has not had the facilities to turn out more teachers in the past; and needless to say, the College could not possibly produce all of the number that will be needed. But enhancement of the College's teacher-training facilities would help, and help decisively. The growth of the State's population alone makes this development a necessity.

More college girls than ever before are deciding upon teaching as their life career. Woman's College will be able to make teaching more attractive and effective for them when it is able to assure every student in teacher training that she will receive the best preparation for and thereby the best chance of success in her chosen profession.

The permanent improvements the College is seeking in the 1957-59 biennial will serve directly or indirectly toward meeting the State's need for teachers.

Wake County

President William C. Friday of the University of North Carolina told the approximately 150 Wake County alumnae at their fall dinner meeting on November 6 "that the people of the State must find a way to lick the problem of dwindling college faculties and inadequate library resources." Speaking on "Legislation" at the chapter's semi-annual dinner meeting in the State College Union, the newly-appointed president pointed out the needs of the Consolidated University in regard to faculties, libraries, research, and equipment. Other speakers on the dinner program were Acting Chancellor W. W. Pierson and Alumnae Secretary Barbara Parrish.

Cora (Stegall) Rice '45, chapter chairman, presided during the business session at which time committee reports were made. Elizabeth (Patten) Brafford '41 reported that the Nominating Committee had selected Jackie (Yelverton) Woodward '45 for secretary to replace Martha (Hall) Holloman '45, who moved from Raleigh during the summer. Juanita Stott '27 reported that the present recipient of the Chapter Scholarship, Hilda Walker, is making a fine record at the College, where she is president of the Junior Class. Gladys (Strawn) Bulard '39, first vice-chairman and Ways and Means Chairman, told of the Christmas cards and wrappings project, proceeds from which go into the Scholarship Fund.

Jacksonville, Florida

Fifteen members of the Jacksonville, Florida Alumnae Chapter met for lunch in the St. Johns Room of the Prudential Building on November 27. The group represented not only Jacksonville, but also nearby Ponte Vedra, Jacksonville Beach, and Orange Park.

Columbia, South Carolina

The Columbia, South Carolina Alumnae Chapter had a party at the Faculty Club on the University of South Carolina campus on October 11 to celebrate the Woman's College's 46th Birthday.

Associational Business

"During the last eighteen months, more than 200 faculty members have been lost from the Consolidated University, though enrollments are swelling to an all-time high. We cannot maintain the standards you want if this situation continues." So said Mr. William C. Friday, President of the Consolidated University of North Carolina to the 108 alumnae (largest number in business meeting history!) who came to the Mid-Winter Luncheon in the Elliott Hall Ballroom on December 1.

He continued: The Consolidated University budget for the 1957-59 biennium, which was submitted to the Board of Higher Education in August, and in turn, by that group to the Advisory Budget Commission, was prepared with the feeling "that we should, above all else, request additional funds to carry out the primary responsibilities of the University to the citizens of North Carolina: to teach the students properly, to continue our extension activities, and to carry on the vitally essential research activities to increase the available knowledge of the world in which we live. We feel that to meet these responsibilities our first task is to keep the distinguished faculty and staff members we now have." The budget, therefore, was designed "to (1) keep the distinguished faculty now at the three institutions, (2) employ new people to meet the need now present, (3) gain additional funds to build up library resources, and (4) provide for faculty research."

"I ask you to make your friends aware of the need for additional funds from the legislature so we can continue to draw on highly trained faculties and personnel. If we fail, we shall not have a Woman's College of the quality we now have," Mr. Friday said.

During the business session which followed President Friday's speech, the Associational budget for 1957 was approved (elsewhere on this page) and candidates for offices for 1957-59 were presented by Annie Lee (Stafford) Greenfield '19, chairman of the Nominating Committee:

You'll be hearing more about the candidates in the April issue of THE NEWS.

We missed you who couldn't make it for the meeting, but we're counting on your being here for the Commencement Meeting on June 1. Begin lining-up cooks, baby-sitters, bottle-washers, etc. NOW . . . and come for the weekend!

Dear Alumnae

Our December meeting was a great success, but we still missed a lot of Faces! The attendance was the biggest for a mid-winter gathering in the history of our Association.

President Friday talked to us about the budgetary needs of the Consolidated University and Woman's College and he called upon us to help acquaint the members of the Legislature with these needs.

We were certainly proud to have him and his charming wife, Ida, as our honored guests.

May 1957 be a healthy, happy, peaceful year for each of you; and please include in your New Year's resolutions: (1) to attend the June 1 commencement meeting, (2) to keep us in the Alumnae Office informed about what you are doing these days.

Cordially yours,

Emily Harris Poyer

An Open Letter . . .

Office of the Chancellor
December 18, 1956

My dear Miss Parrish:

The date and the occasion for this letter have a relationship both to Thanksgiving and to Christmas. I should like for the spirit of this communication to be thought of as having a dual relationship. I am, of course, in this indirect manner introducing my subject.

I received from you two checks, each in the amount of $1,000. One of these checks was for the purpose of making partial repayment of the loan to the Alumnae Association from the University's "Consolidated Office." I presented this check to President Friday in person and received his acknowledgment with an expression of appreciation to you and the Association.

The second check was the gift of $1,000 by the Alumnae Association to the College. On my part I wish to acknowledge for the College receipt of this gift and to make for the College acknowledgment and expression of deepest appreciation. The check was deposited as a trust fund marked "Chancellor's Discretionary Fund." Although you have generously attached "no strings" to the use of this gift it will be expended according to the spirit in which it was given—that is for the constructive benefit of the College.

With best wishes to you and to the Alumnae Association, I am gratefully and

Sincerely,

W. W. PIERNON
Acting Chancellor

PAT MARKAS says . . .

"Scouting calls for every talent you possess" professional advancement and personal enrichment. She told me about the wide choice of jobs and locations that would become available as I progressed in my work."

As a new local professional worker, she faced a bewildering variety of unfamiliar situations. But her council members worked closely with her, introduced her to Girl Scout techniques, and helped her over the period of adjustment.

"I literally didn't know a rank from a badge when I set foot in that office," she admits ruefully. "But thanks to the excellent texts, the guidance of my council adviser, the help of volunteers, and the one-month Initial Training Course, I begin to feel that I've passed the Tenderfoot stage of my Girl Scout career."

In addition to the usual day-to-day council activities, Pat is working with council representatives now studying the possibility of extending jurisdiction to include a neighboring county with a number of lone troops. She is also strengthening relationships with half a dozen colleges in the vicinity, for both professional and volunteer recruitment.

Recruiting is "doing what comes naturally," she says, to anybody who has found the deep personal satisfaction she derives from her work with the Girl Scouts. "The job is stimulating and interesting," she adds. "It calls on every talent you possess and a lot that you have to develop. One minute you may be interviewing for the camp staff, and the next, explaining investiture to a new leader."

Pat loves music, sports, and the out-of-doors. Swimming is a natural for the camping season, of course, and she finds time for an occasional game of golf or tennis. And for her social life—"I love dancing—everything from waltzes to cha-cha."

Among the social values of Scouting, she rates particularly high the experience in sound human relationships. "Our emphasis in the council is on the girl in the troop and her adjustment to people of all kinds," she explains. "Our reward, whether as professional workers or as volunteers, is seeing that our efforts are helping to produce healthy, happy, resourceful girls who are the good citizens of today and tomorrow."

(3) Repairs and Alterations

Because the amount in the budget for the present biennium is inadequate, an increase is requested for building repairs, interior and exterior painting, plumbing, heating, electrical and general repairs . . . funds to keep that which we have in workable and presentable condition.

(4) Equipment

The present furniture in the older residence halls has been in use more than 30 years; the carpets, more than 20 years . . . even the best of furnishings will last just so long. The replacement of beds, chairs, mirrors, carpets, etc. is necessary in these residence halls. Also, some replacement of equipment is necessary for instruction, buildings, and grounds.

RECIPE EXCHANGE

For several weeks before Christmas, Anne Cantrell White, Woman's Editor of the Greensboro Daily News, published each day "A Recipe for a Carolina Christmas." One of the contributors for the series was Mrs. W. W. Pierson, wife of the acting chancellor . . . one of her "recommendations" was a recipe for baked macaroni. According to Mrs. Pierson, this casserole is a great favorite of men and is her favorite for a buffet supper when ham is the main dish.

Baked Macaroni

1	regular size box of macaroni
½	pound New York State cheese
2	tablespoons flour
1	pint milk
1	Bermuda onion
1	cup coffee cream
¼	large green pepper
2	tablespoons butter
2	large peeled tomatoes
2	slices bacon
	Bread crumbs
	Salt

Boil macaroni in salt water for 10 minutes. Drain. Grease large baking dish with butter. Add alternately layers of macaroni, thoroughly cut vegetables, and bacon cut into small pieces. Salt vegetables lightly. Make a thin cream sauce of the milk, cream, flour, butter, and cheese.

Pour sauce over the macaroni and vegetables. Sprinkle top with bread crumbs and dot with butter. Bake in 325 degree oven for 50 minutes. Cut off oven and let stand for 10 minutes. Will serve 10 people.

If you have a SPECIAL recipe which you would like to share with your Alumnae sisters, send it along to the Alumnae Office for "publication." And if you would like to know a certain recipe, send us a "recipe request" . . . maybe an ALUMNAE NEWS reader will be able to help you through Recipe Exchange.
